

Biographical Sketch of Minister Doris Annette Lindsay

Minister Doris Annette Lindsay is a native of Norfolk, Virginia and currently resides in Suffolk, Virginia with her husband, Minister John Clifton Lindsay, III and their two children, Briana and John Lindsay, IV. She is the youngest of seven children born to the late Mary Ann Briggs and the late Reverend John R. Briggs, Sr., former pastor of the Divine Baptist Church in Chesapeake, Virginia. While under the leadership of her father, Minister Lindsay served in both the Young Voices Choir and No. 2 Choir of Divine Baptist Church and she also served as a youth missionary. She was an active leadership member of the Youth Fellowship Ministry, as well as the Chesapeake & Portsmouth Rappahannock Sunday School Union.

Minister Lindsay is a 1980 graduate of Norview High School in Norfolk, Virginia and received her Bachelor of Science Degree in Counseling from Old Dominion University in August of 2000. Minister Lindsay completed several classes at the Tidewater Bible College in Virginia Beach, Virginia, and will soon be pursuing her Master of Arts Degree in Ministry. Minister Lindsay is currently employed as a Business Manager with the Virginia Department of Corrections.

She is currently a member of the Tidewater Bibleway Temple in Portsmouth, Virginia, where she serves faithfully under the leadership of her pastor, Apostle Michael J. Rogers. There she has been entrusted to serve in several ministry capacities. She is the Director of the Performing Arts/Praise Dance Ministries, the Co-Director of the Marriage Enrichment Ministry; she is a Senior Missionary, as well as a Praise and Worship Leader and also serves on the Board of Ruling Elders.

Minister Lindsay is a gifted writer and director with several plays to her credit including two black history dramatizations entitled, "We've Got a Right to Praise Him," and "This is Our Story, This is Our Praise."

Called by God to minister to the needs of God's people and to bring encouragement and deliverance to the body of Christ through her prophetic gifting, Minister Lindsay ministers the Gospel of the Kingdom both in Word and in Song.
